NOVEMBER NEWSLETTER

HEALTH WATCH

We have been fortunate to start the school year with a return to many opportunities and events that we value in the school. As we head into the winter months, and in consideration of the upcoming flu season, we ask all families to continue practicing positive health habits and not to send your children to school when they are sick. Additionally, we ask you to continue following the recommendations put forward by AHS surrounding COVID-19. For more information you can click on the following link: Isolation and Quarantine. If you have any additional questions regarding health and safety at the school, please do not hesitate to contact the office.

GRADE 5 LEGACY PROJECT

Each year, our Grade 5 students participate in a service project within the community. This year students are building relationships with the residence of Columbia Assisted Living and made their first visit on Halloween!

A group photo of the Grade 5s is displayed in the front foyer and the service projects are recorded each year on a plaque.

WELLNESS

Hello Probe Families! It has been a busy month providing universal mental health lessons in all of the classrooms Grades 1-5. Students have been working hard at understanding the neurobiology of stress and emotion. What does this mean? I encourage you to check with your child! They will tell you all about the brain and emotions. They are real experts. Here is a graphic that we use in our learning
